

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

DISTRICT OF NEVADA

JAMES EDWARD SCOTT, III,

Case No. 3:23-cv-00273-ART-CLB

Plaintiff,

ORDER

v.

DR. HALKI, et al.,

Defendants.

State prisoner James Scott filed a motion under “NRCP 60(b)(1)” for “global reconsideration of all screening orders” in 34 of his lawsuits, arguing the Court mistakenly failed to recognize that Article 1, § 6 of the Nevada Constitution provides greater protections and imposes lesser burdens than the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. (ECF No. 26).

I. DISCUSSION

“The court possesses the inherent power to reconsider an interlocutory order for cause, so long as the court retains jurisdiction.” Nev. LR 59-1(a). “A party seeking reconsideration under [LR 59-1] must state with particularity the points of law or fact that the court has overlooked or misunderstood.” Id. “Changes in legal or factual circumstances that may entitle the movant to relief also must be stated with particularity.” Id. “Reconsideration also may be appropriate if (1) there is newly discovered evidence that was not available when the original motion or response was filed, (2) the court committed clear error in the initial decision or was manifestly unjust, or (3) if there is an intervening change in controlling law.” Id. But “[m]otions for reconsideration are disfavored” and “must be brought within a reasonable time.” Id. at (b) & (c).

The motion is denied because Plaintiff does not identify the part of the record in this action that he moves the Court to reconsider, and he provides no

1 legal authority supporting his underlying argument or showing that his motion
2 was filed within a reasonable time after entry of the subject order. See, e.g., Nev.
3 LR 7-2(d) (explaining that “[t]he failure of a moving party to file points and
4 authorities in support of the motion constitutes a consent to the denial of the 5 motion”); General Order No. 2021-05 at 5, § 3(g) (same). Plaintiff is cautioned that 6 filing a “global” motion that generically seeks relief in dozens of lawsuits is an
7 abusive litigation practice that strains the Court’s limited resources and will not
8 be tolerated.

9 Finally, to the extent Plaintiff contends that Article 1, § 6 of the Nevada
10 Constitution affords him more protections and imposes lesser burdens on him
11 than the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, “the Nevada Supreme 12 Court has noted the similarity between the federal and state constitutions, and 13 frequently looks to federal precedent to guide their analysis.” Meeks v. Nev. Dep’t 14 of Corr., Case No. 3:18-cv-00431-MMD-WGC, 2020 WL 8084979, at *19 (D. Nev.
15 Nov. 10, 2020) (collecting cases); accord Naovarath v. State, 779 P.2d 944, 949 16 n.6 (Nev. 1989) (holding that sentence of life without the possibility of parole for 17 a mentally and emotionally disabled thirteen-year-old child violated state and 18 federal constitutions because both “proscribe cruel and unusual punishment”).
19 And federal courts apply the same legal standards to claims under the cruel and 20 unusual punishment provision of the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution
21 as they do to claims under the cruel or unusual punishment provision of Article
22 1, § 6 of the Nevada Constitution. Cardenas-Ornelas v. Wickham, Case No. 2:21-
23 cv-00030-ART-VCF, 2024 WL 4368152, at *5 (D. Nev. Sept. 30, 2024) (collecting 24 cases).

25 II. CONCLUSION

26 It is therefore ordered that the motion for reconsideration of all screening
27 orders (ECF No. 26) is denied.
28

1 If Plaintiff wishes to seek reconsideration of an order entered in this action,
2 then he must file a unique, fully supported motion identifying the specific part of
3 the record that he seeks to reconsider, stating with particularity the points of law
4 or fact that he believes entitle him to relief, and showing that he filed the motion
5 within a reasonable time.
